

If a client misunderstands you and gets upset, how do you diffuse the situation?

What would you do if your coworker wasn't doing their fair share of the work?

How do you manage any work related stress?

You notice that you're taking on a lot of tasks outside of your job description. How would you address that with your supervisor?

How would you handle a coworker being treated unfairly?

How do you motivate yourself at work?

You're asked to do something against company policy, but your boss insists that it's okay. What would you do?

What do you appreciate in a good supervisor?